Weekly TVA Newsletter

How Many southern sawmills are turning a hitherto virtually waste material into profit described in a report just published by TVA. The report concerns the economics of pine chip production from sawmill residue.

Within the past five years some 300 sawmills in the South have added log debarkers and wood chippers to their equipment. Until recently slabs cut from logs in the sawing process were virtually a waste product with little or no market. With a debarker and chipper a sawmill, provided its operation is of an economical size, can remove the bark from whole logs and chip or debarked slabs. These chips are sold to paper mills. In 1957 southern sawmills entering the new field sold an estimated 2.8 million tons of pulping chips for $17 million.

The TVA report, prepared by John Lightman, describes equipment costs, operating costs, production, and possible returns. TVA believes that the report should help mill operators decide whether they can profitably produce chips from the mill residue.

The report contains tables on yield of pine chips from various size logs, daily cost of operating debarking and chipping equipment, pulp chip yield by daily lumber production rate and log diameter, and estimated net daily return from chip sale as this is affected by daily lumber production, days operated a year, and average log diameter.

TVA said that as an illustration of the potential market for pine chips the pulp mills drawing wood from the Tennessee Valley will use an estimated 4 million tons in 1959. The sawmills of the Valley will produce about 250 million board feet of pine lumber. If all the residue were recoverable—which is not economically possible now—it would yield 300,000 tons of chips. This is the equivalent of 125,000 cords of round pulpwood, which in turn is 26 percent of the Valley's 1957 pulpwood production. Sixty of the 150 municipal and cooperative distributors of TVA power have thus far indicated they will participate in a promotion campaign aimed at increasing sale of air conditioning units in the Tennessee Valley region this year. The drive by retail dealers will run from May 15 to July 15 and will be sponsored by the Tennessee Valley Public Power Association.

The participating power distributors jointly will give the first prize winner, to be determined by drawing from those registering with dealers, the option of $1,000 in cash, or a trip to Nassau for two, with expenses paid. In addition each distributor will give a $10 cash bonus to every purchaser of an air conditioning unit in its territory, and will give a unit to one person, also to be determined by drawing.

Two recent public auctions of land on Cherokee and Kentucky Lakes realized $62,765. TVA said today. Sixteen tracts on Cherokee Lake brought $18,390; minimum acceptable price on the tracts was $15,885. Thirty-two tracts on Kentucky Lake sold for $44,375, or an increase of 54 percent over the combined minimum acceptable price of $28,705.

Two recent public auctions of land on Cherokee and Kentucky Lakes realized $62,765. TVA said today. Thirty-two tracts on Kentucky Lake sold for $44,375, or an increase of 54 percent over the combined minimum acceptable price of $28,705.

The 100th million visit to a TVA dam or steam plant since 1933 occurred on Feb. 6 with arrival at Kentucky Dam of the Rev. Robert Lee Johnston of Evansville, Ind. He was accompanied by his wife and son.

1,278-acre tract is included in the 23 tracts of Norris Lake land to be offered at public auction on March 18. TVA said today. The sale will be held at 11 a. m. at the courthouse at Maynardville, Tenn. The land is in Union, Claiborne, and Garrettsville Counties.

Second largest tract to be offered covers 983 acres; third largest 797 acres. Tracts range down in size to 2.2 acres.

Information about the land to be offered may be obtained from TVA's Land Branch, 122 Lupton Building, Chattanooga, or from Val L. Stanton at the Freeway Motel on U. S. Highway 441, Stanton will be at the motel from Feb. 24 to date of sale.

OUT FOR A STROLL—Pope John XXIII takes a walk in the Vatican Gardens, Rome. A helicopter is slated to land in the courtyard of the Papal Palace in a special demonstration for the Pope. Vatican sources say that the unpredictable Pontiff may well express a desire to take a short flight. His aides probably would advise him against it.

Urge Early Start On Dental Care

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A child's first visit to the dentist should never be delayed past the age of three, whether the youngster seems to need dental care or not.

This visit, says the American Dental Association, can be in the nature of a social call, giving the child a chance to get acquainted with the dentist on terms that do not associate him with discomfort or pain.

The idea is to set the stage for providing the youngster with dental care in those early years when the foundation is laid for healthy teeth throughout life.

Brushing should also begin at an early age, dentists agree, even though the first teeth will be later replaced. This establishes a pattern of dental care and prepares the child for the "six-year" molars, which are permanent teeth.

PLAN OIL PIPELINE

ROME (UPI) — Italy has announced plans to construct a big pipeline system to funnel oil imports to Switzerland from the port of Genoa. Officials said today the project will sharply reduce land shipment costs for oil needed by land-locked Switzerland.

School employees for all state and local governments in the U. S. earn a total of nearly 760 million dollars a month.

THE 8TH CIRCLE A MASTER MYSTERY BY STANLEY ELLIN

CHAPTER 9
MURRAY KIRK interrupted Bruno Manfredi's run-down on the Miller. "So far all that's missing is the gray-tubing and the faithful dog. When do they come in?"
"Will you let me do my own way?" Bruno demanded.
"Now listen, in September, 1933, Miller enrolled at New York University. Three months later they gave him the heave-ho right out of there."
"Why?"
"For peddling examination papers. It all came out in the newspapers when Miller's people sued for readmission. Think it's worth anything to Harlowe?"
"I'll leave that up to him. What happened to Miller after that?"
"Well, we lost him for a couple of years and then we picked him up doing office work for the Bindlow Resort Corporation. That's the company that runs the Acres—you know, that billion-dollar hotel up in the Catskills."
"What's Miller got to do with this?"
"Plenty. The guy who owns it is Daniel Bindlow, and he's got one niece, Pearl. In 1940 Miller hit the jackpot: he went and married this Pearl. She's not much to look at maybe, and she's five, six years older than Miller. Anyway, he played it for keeps."
"Then in 1942 the army grabbed him. After that he went to work for Bindlow again, and he's where it gets interesting. Bindlow was having all kinds of trouble running his place those years. The help was looking for more pay, so he had a couple of strikes, and he also had basketball trouble."
"Basketball trouble?"
"I thought that would interest you. You know how those hotel hire college teams to play for them in the summer? It's one of the biggest things up there. The kids are supposed to be writers and bellhops and such, but they're getting their dough to play ball, and everybody knows it. Bindlow's trouble was that he couldn't buy himself a winner. The engineers wanted to bet on the home team, but every time he did it they up and quit. For a while he had a guy who could take care of everything for him. The kid was called the best-kept secret in the hotel. He was a real little mouse-worker. "You know who?"

"Miller," said Murray. "Was it?"
"Bruno stubbed out his cigarette in the ashtray before him and leaned back in his chair smilingly. "Guy name of George Wyckoff," he said gently, "that's who else. Fix you up with the union, fix you up with a basketball team, fix you up with anything you want, if you can pay for it. Which Bindlow could."

"Where'd you learn all this?" Murray asked.
"I got hold of a program for a game they had up there around that time, and Rignold located one of the guys listed on it. I had a long talk with this guy for the price of a drink. It's all written down there. He says you can use whatever you want of it, he don't care. He says the way they got a winning team at the hotel was that Wyckoff paid other teams to dump games to them now and then, but at the end of the season Wyckoff ran off with most of the pay-off money. They all hated his guts."

"And what's this got to do with Miller?"
"Well, when Wyckoff took off at the end of the season, Miller and his wife Pearl went along with him. That must have been the beginning of their tie-up. Then Miller showed up in New York making book on the West Side and using this Songster Company for a front. Songster is still in business, by the way. Miller sold it to a guy named Billings last summer, and I had quite a parley with this Billings. You know what kind of outfit it is?"
"Theatrical agency?"
"Bruno waved a disdainful hand. "Nah, that's way out of Billings' class. This is a real sucker trap. What it claims to do is write words to music or music to words, whichever way the suckers want it. They pay plenty for this, and in the long run they wind up with some copies of the song, and no harm done. When Miller ran the place, Schrade used to handle the song-writing angle for him. You know, Murray reflected on that. Even in choosing a front for an illegal operation, Miller was driven to choose something which was a swindle in itself. It was the kind of fine instinct that would let him know exactly what cop to pay, and how much to pay him, and how to have the cop take the rap when the time came. A very smooth fish swimming easily in very hot water, because that was his natural habitat."

"What's he up to now?" asked Murray. "I mean, Miller."
"He's back with Bindlow again. Mostly he's in the New York office here, but when there's a big holiday rush at the Acres he goes

Greyhounds Down Benton

The Reidland Greyhounds put down a last quarter drive by the Benton Indians to defeat Coach Bill Harris' club 61-50 Tuesday night on the latter's home floor. Reidland took a 16-11 advantage in the opening period and held the upper hand all the way in recording the triumph. The Greyhounds held a 33-26 lead at halftime but saw the margin dwindle to three points, 45-42, at the close of the third stanza. Benton could not muster the strength to snap the Reidland lead.

Don Rudolph hit for 24 points to lead all scorers. Gold was high for the losers, with 17 markers. Reidland 16 33 45 61
Benton 11 26 42 50

Ballard Edged By North Marshall

The Ballard Memorial Bombers hung on until the last minute in a futile effort to topple visiting North Marshall but fell short of the range as the Jets slithered to a 68-61 win.

Ballard took the opening lead but North went ahead 9-8 and climbed to a 14-10 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Jets were able to up the count to eight points, 34-26, at halftime and gained another basket-spread in the third stanza for a 10 point advantage going into the final canto. Ballard made a last ditch rally that fell short as North slipped past the Bomber trap for another victory.

Jim Lampley led the North Marshall scoring with 17 points, but gave up scoring honors to the Bombers' Newton with 26.
